

introduced too much interference for detection of the body fluids, as seen in Figure 6. This limits the techniques applications to the field of forensic science, as most body fluid evidence most